SNR Margin

The SNR margin is the difference between the current Signal to Noise Ratio and minimal SNR required to sync at a specific transfer speed.

Higher SNR margin means a better signal, with less background noise, which in turn means a more stable the connection.

From:
http://docs.intenogroup.com/glossary/ - Inteno Glossary

Permanent link:
http://docs.intenogroup.com/glossary/s/snr_margin

Last update: 2018/08/10 18:16